

Step on the white snow

Beneath a sky of somber gray,
Softly falls the snow today.
This frozen heart I try to hide
Is gently wrapped in flakes that glide.

Today, I must hold back my tears,
Until your fading steps disappear.
Though my heart still lingers near,
How do I turn and walk from here?

When I step on the white snow, memories rise—
Now they feel like dreams behind my eyes.
On this lonely path I tread alone,
Only footprints in the snow guide me home.

Today, I must hold back my tears,
Until your fading steps disappear.
Though my heart still lingers near,
How do I turn and walk from here?

When I step on the white snow, memories rise—
Now they feel like dreams behind my eyes.
On this lonely path I tread alone,
Only footprints in the snow guide me home.

When I step on the white snow, memories rise—
Now they feel like dreams behind my eyes.
On this lonely path I tread alone,
Only footprints in the snow guide me home.

Washing you away

Gray clouds gather above my head,
The wind sighs like the words we never said.
Somewhere far beyond its gentle touch,
I think of you and let my head hang low.

The wind is blowing through my hollow chest,
And I let go of all of you I kept.
The sky is crying, trying to calm my soul,
The rain is falling, washing you away.

I walk these streets without a plan,
Chasing traces of you without knowing why.
Each broken raindrop crashing to the ground
Soaks my heart until it can't stay dry.

An echo calls from deep inside my chest,
Stirring you from where you lay to rest.
My heart is weeping—everywhere I turn,
I see your face in every corner of this world.

The wind brushes past me like your voice,
Whispering gently, trying to soothe my choice.
The endless sky above looks down on me,
Holds me close and lets me grieve—
Says it's time to let you be, to set you free.

The wind is blowing through my thirsty soul,
Only your name still echoes as it goes.
I try to hold on, but you fade away,
A shadow in the mist of yesterday.
Oh, the rain is falling...
Washing you away... Oh—oh, oh, oh...

Stand up on my own

Made my coffee this morning
For the first time in weeks, I added honey
Been meaning to try something new
Never could when you were around

Each day gets easier without you here
I'm learning the sound of my own footsteps
The quiet doesn't feel empty anymore

And I'm starting to breathe clearer now

Rearranged all the furniture
Left your favorite chair by the door
Till I realized I never liked the way
It blocked the morning light
Now the sun fills every corner
Just the way I wanted before

I thought I'd miss the noise
The constant back and forth
But there's a certain peace in knowing
I can stand up on my own
(Stand up on my own)

Remember how you said I'd crumble?
Funny how I'm still standing tall
These walls don't feel too big anymore
They fit me just right

Each day gets easier without you here
I'm learning the sound of my own footsteps
The quiet doesn't feel empty anymore
And I'm starting to breathe clearer now

Each day gets easier without you here
I'm learning the sound of my own footsteps
The quiet doesn't feel empty anymore
And I'm starting to breathe clearer now
(Starting to breathe clearer)
(Clearer now)

Just a passing phase

I'm walking down this winding road,
Sunshine on my face, then storms unfold.
People come, they drift away,
Like seasons turning, night and day.

Some bring love, some leave us scars,
But nothing stays the same, that's who we are.
Through it all, I'm learning how to stand.

Time moves on, life spins around,
What feels unshakable can break down.
Don't hold too tight, don't run away,
Every moment's just a passing phase.

Every moment's just a passing phase.

Some hearts lift you high, some leave you low,
But you learn to let it go.
Every joy and every pain—
Like waves, they come and fade away.

Time moves on, life spins around,
What feels unshakable can break down.
Don't hold too tight, don't run away,
Every moment's just a passing phase.

Time moves on, life spins around,
What feels unshakable can break down.
Don't hold too tight, don't run away,
Every moment's just a passing phase.

Every moment's just a passing phase.

I won't surrender

Am I lost again, standing still
Where tangled roads curl into silence?
Like a child by the roadside,
I pretend to be calm... but I tremble inside.

The weight of steps with no clear end,
Almost falling, even now—
But something in my weary chest

Is learning how to beat again.

I won't surrender, I won't be still.
A dream still lingers quietly in me.
No, I won't surrender, I never will—
For the day I hold most dearly...
I keep going.

Did I lose myself in this maze?
This reflection feels too fragile to face.
But even now, this heart of mine
Still holds warmth it can't erase.

I won't surrender, I won't be still.
A dream still lingers quietly in me.
No, I won't surrender, I never will—
For the day I hold most dearly...
I keep going.

I won't surrender, I won't be still.
A dream still lingers quietly in me.
No, I won't surrender, I never will—
For the day I hold most dearly...
I keep going. I keep going.

You are my lost world

I get down low to meet your face
Bowing my head to see your tiny eyes
And in your gaze, I see myself again
Drifting into a world so wide, so pure, so clear

You are my lost world
A place I once knew but somehow forgot
You are my lost world
A quiet place
Where trust runs deep, and you stay by my side

I watch you sleep in the morning light
Breathing so soft, you're safe tonight
The world out there is breaking apart
But here in your eyes, I remember my heart

Your heartbeat's a promise, your touch is a guide
You lead me back to the stars in the sky
No fear, no lies—just the truth that we share
A world we lost, but we're finding it here

You are my lost world
A secret garden no one can take away
You are my lost world
Forever you stay in my heart
You are my lost world

I give you a little—just a little each day
But you give me everything in your quiet way
Your simple, endless world—your gift, every moment

You are my lost world
A place I once knew but somehow forgot
You are my lost world
A quiet place
Where trust runs deep, and you stay by my side

Sunset

The sunset burns like fire in the sky,
Mountains rise, but they can't hide what's inside.
The wind cuts through the dark,
And I feel you in the shadows of my heart.

The night still holds that endless glow,
But where's your face? Where did you go?

I'm screaming out your name,
The one who fought with me through hell and rain.

I'm screaming, though you've gone,
But the sound of your love keeps me holding on.

The moon breaks through a sky of grey,
But clouds roll in and steal the light away.
In this room, the silence grows,
And the ache of losing you is all I know.

Is everything meant to fade?
Will I never feel your hand again someday?

I can't let go of your embrace,
The fire we built, the love we swore would never break.
No, I can't erase your soul,
You're the piece of me that always made me whole.

So I'm screaming out your name,
Like a wildfire tearing through my veins.
I'll keep you close inside,
In my heart where time can't tear us apart—
You're mine.

Give me courage

I sit alone in this dark, small room,
Staring blank, no clue what to do.
Where to go, what to become,
No answers here, no place to run.
But I've got to rise, I've got to break free,
Even if the fear is crushing me.

The road ahead, it's rough and unknown,
Can't turn back, the past is closed.
I'm standing here, gotta face the fight—
No more running, no more hiding inside.

Give me courage, give me strength,
Tell me this broken path I chose

Will lead somewhere, will mean something—
Someday I'll make it, I know.

Hold me tight in your warm embrace,
Tell me not to give up, not to fade away.
Just a little more, I can hold on—
I'll make it through.

No one else can take my place,
No one else can walk my way.
This burden's mine, I'll carry it far—
A long road ahead with all these scars.

Looking back, I see the days I roamed,
But I was never truly alone.
Your voice, your words, they pulled me through,
Gave me strength when I had none to lose.

Give me courage, give me hope,
So I can give, so I can let go,
Feel with my heart, not just with my hands,
Find a way to understand.
Wrap me in the warmth of your gaze,
Tell me it's okay, even in the haze.
Though the end's unclear, I'll still believe—
We'll make it there, together, we'll see.

When the road feels too hard, too strange,
It's okay to stop, to rest, to change.
All the tears and all the pain,
They won't be wasted, they won't be in vain.
Please don't let me fall asleep in doubt—
Please don't let the fire go out.
Give me courage.
Give me courage.
Give me courage.
Oh, oh, oh~
Give me courage.

Sugar Hill love story

Sugar Hill in my world, where the sunshine's soft and sweet,
My darling, you're a hummingbird—
Every morning, you come flutterin' by, dance around me...
then fly away.
Oh, my love, you're a wild hummingbird,

It's hard to forget, that much is true,
Even when I close my eyes, I still dream of you.
Like a child, I wander near, I don't know what to do,
My heart's too small to hold the love I've saved for you.

Waiting feels like a foolish thing, oh, yes it does—
Like a sunflower bowing down when the daylight's gone.
Still I stand and face the sun, though you never turn my way,
I wait for another day, just to wait for you.

Oh, it's so hard to let it go,
Even when my hands are empty and the winds begin to blow.
I try to fill the hollow space with pieces of your smile,
And in the echoes of your voice, I stay a little while.

Waiting feels like a foolish thing, oh, yes it does—
Like a sunflower bowing down when the daylight's gone.
I wait for another day, just to wait again.
I wait for you, though you're always far away.

Sugar Hill in my world, where the sunshine's soft and sweet,
My darling, you're a hummingbird—
Every morning, you come flutterin' by, dance around me...
then fly away.
Oh, my love, you're a wild hummingbird.

Say it

Can't feel your vibe, it's colder than before
No soft eyes, no sweet talk anymore
Silence grows like a storm we ignore
And I'm breakin' down — can't fake it no more

Used to be fire, now we just freeze
You look away like you don't see me
This love's on mute, can't let it be
Say it now — don't let it bleed

Say you love me — don't wait, don't stall
Before my heart hits the final fall
Say it strong, say it real
So I know what we had was more than a feel
Can't read your eyes, can't hear your tone
You shut me out like I'm already gone
Tell me somethin' that'll keep me holdin' on
Say it now — or I'm movin' on

Let go my hand, turnin' your back
Step by step, we fall off track
More space, more pain, more silence attack
And I'm losin' air — stuck in the black

Every breath's like a final scene
Used to be love, now it's just routine
Say the words, don't make me plead
If I lose you now — I'm incomplete

Say you love me — don't leave it behind
Right now, I'm runnin' outta time
Say it loud, say it true
So I don't lose every part of you
I can't let go, I won't pretend
You the start, middle, and the end
Without you I ain't even a man
Say you love me — understand

Yeah —
Full of regrets, scars on my chest
This love got me messed, but I gave it my best
(Still... I need you)
Now we strangers in the mirror, can't lie
(But I... still believe you)
Can't let you go, won't call it a wrap
Still dreamin' of us on the same path
I still love you, that's just facts
I'm lost without you — no way back

Say you love me...
Before I fade, before I fall
Say you love me...
Don't let silence be the end of it all

Say my name

Should I walk away, should I let it go?
Will you call my name or leave me in the glow?
You're so close, but still so far—
Reaching out, but don't know who you are

I could run through the night, lose myself in the crowd
But the echo of us keeps pullin' me down
Tried to forget, but I still feel it all—
The rise, the fall...

Say my name one more time
Like you did back when your heart was mine
Take my hand in the neon light
Hold me like you mean it tonight
Look in my eyes—don't lie
I see the fire you're trying to hide
Say my name one more time
Before the beat fades into goodbye

Say it—say it—one more time
Say it—say it—before goodbye
Say it—say it—don't let it die
Say my name one more time

You stand so still while the world moves fast
Trapped in a moment we can't get back
You watch me like you wanna speak
But your silence is louder than the beat

I could spin on the floor, but my heart's at the door
Waiting for you to say you'll give me more
Tried to move on, but I'm stuck in the glow—
The high, the low...

Say my name one more time
Like you did back when your love was mine
Take my hand in the flashing light
Hold me like we've still got time
Look in my eyes—don't lie
I see the tears you're trying to hide
Say my name one more time
Before the music says goodbye

On this lonely street, where the DJ plays
Our story's spinning, fading away
Streetlights flicker, love drifts by
But I'm still here—won't you try?

Say my name one more time
Don't let it end without a sign
Take my hand—don't say goodbye
Hold me like we're still alive

Say it—say it—one more time
Say it—say it—before goodbye
Say it—say it—don't let it die
Say my name one more time